microseismic monitoring and geomechanical modelling of co - microseismic monitoring and geomechanical modelling of co storage in subsurface reservoirs james p verdon this thesis presents an impressive summary of the potential to use passive seismic methods to monitor the sequestration of anthropogenic co2 in geologic reservoirs, conclusions springer for research development - abstract this thesis has investigated the use of microseismic techniques to monitor hbox co 2 injection and storage as well as using geomechanical models to guide the interpretation of these observations a summary of the findings has been provided at the end of each chapter but in this sect 1 will review the key findings highlighting novel contributions to the field and areas for,
